BRAIN FOOD.

Is of Little Benefit Unless It is Digestible. Nearly everyone will admit that as a nation we eat too much meat and too little vegetables and the grains.

For business men, office men and clerks, and in fact everyone engaged in sedentary or indoor occupations, grains, milk and vegetables are much more healthful.

Only men engaged in a severe out door manual labor can live on a heavy meat diet and continue in health.

As a general rule, meat once a day is sufficient for all classes of men, women and children, and grains, fruit and vegetables should constitute the bulk of food eaten.

But many of the most nutritious foods are difficult to digest and it is of no use to advise brain workers to eat largely of grains and vegetables where the digestion is too weak to assimilate them properly.

It is always best to get the best results from our food that some simple and harmless digestive should be taken after meals to assist the relaxed digestive organs, and several years' experience have proven Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets to be a very safe, pleasant and effective digestive and a remedy which may be taken daily with the best results.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets can hardly be called a patent medicine, as they do not act on the bowels nor any particular organ, but only on the food eaten. They supply what weak stomachs lack, pepsin diastase and by stimulating the gastric glands increase the natural secretion of hydrochloric acid.

People who make a daily practice of taking one or two of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after each meal are sure to have perfect digestion which means perfect health.

There is no danger of forming an injurious habit as the tablets contain absolutely nothing but natural digestives: cocaine, morphine and similar drugs have no place in a stomach medicine and Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are certainly the best known and most popular of all stomach remedies.

Ask your druggist for a fifty cent package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and after a week's use note the improvement in health, appetite and nervous energy.

A FORGOTTEN HERO

Major George Croghan and His Defense of Fort Stephenson.

It is noteworthy that the reputation of our great soldiers was in every case built up of long as well as brilliant service, says Leslie's Weekly. In no case has it been the result of any single deed, however heroic. In fact, others have performed single deeds of heroism surpassing in bravery, yet today know anything of the personality of Major Croghan?

Circuit Court in Dakota

HURON, S. D., March 20.—(Special Telegram.)—Judge Campbell closed his court for the circuit court for Beadle county here on Saturday. Cases so far disposed of are criminal. The case of the state against N. B. Alger for violating the liquor law was dismissed, and that of the state against Frank Gans and Harry Rowe for selling intoxicating liquors to minors, resulted in a verdict of acquittal. Merrill and Mary Cameron of Westington were found guilty of selling intoxicating liquors without a license, and R. Phillips was charged with the charge of keeping a gambling house. A case that attracted more than ordinary attention was that of the state against John Kelly, charged with grand larceny. The complaint recites that the accused took a pocket watch from an Anthony Porrali, a recently discharged convict, containing $70 and appropriating it to his own use. The jury after being out all one night, returned a verdict against the defendant. The next case was the state against P. McKay charged with keeping a gambling house, and which resulted in a verdict in favor of the state. In the case of the state against John Weigman, for assault with a dangerous weapon, the jury returned a verdict in favor of the defendant. A number of other criminal cases will be heard this week. It is Judge Campbell's intention to clear the calendar as nearly as possible during the present term.

Work for Referendum

ABERDEEN, S. D., March 20.—(Special Telegram.)—Parties opposed to the action of the city council in closing Lincoln street for court house purposes are busy engaged in getting signers to a petition for a referendum on the matter. Those claiming to be authority on the subject say this will be the first time that the referendum has ever been invoked in the United States.

should make a flank attack Harrison had authorized Croghan to burn the fort and retreat. This he did not do. "We are determined to maintain this place," he said, "and by heaven we will!" Harrison thereupon dispatched an officer to relieve him. But Croghan was to headquarters, carried his point, and when, on August 1, the English commander summoned him to surrender, sent back a stout defiance. The next day the bombardment began, and toward afternoon an assault was ordered. The English soldiers in three columns of 20 men each, were to attack three sides. The Indians were to storm the fourth, but as they came out of the woods fire from the fort drove them back. The British troops, thus left to fight alone, came on bravely to the very gates, made every possible effort to get into the fort for two hours and then retreated with all of the officers and one-fifth of the men killed, wounded or missing. The wave of enthusiasm which rolled over the country as the result of this victory equalled anything of the kind seen in our day, but who today knows anything of the personality of Major Croghan?

Just when the town in Ohio perpetuating the name of the first republican candidate for the presidency and the home of a more successful subsequent candidate for that high office is now situated was a wretched stockade called Fort Stephenson. Its armament consisted of one gun and a garrison of 160 men, commanded by Major George Croghan, a young officer of 22. He was born not far from Louisville, Ky., in 1791, and came of fighting stock, for his father had been an officer in the continental army and his mother was a sister of George Rogers Clark. Graduating from William and Mary college in 1810, he entered the army, was in the battle of Tippecanoe in 1811, and a year later was made captain in the Seventeenth Infantry. With this rank he served under Harrison in 1812 and 1813, and so distinguished himself in a sortie from Fort Meigs that he was appointed an aide-de-camp with the rank of major and assigned to the defense of Fort Stephenson.

HEATERS IN THE NOSE.

Nature's Provisions Against Chilling the Lungs.

Should Be Well Cared For and Not Floated Up.

In the back portion of the nasal cavity are two large masses of blood vessels which pour out upon the surface of the mucous membrane a watery substance that moistens the air which we breathe in through the nostrils, and also warms it. This is nature's way of preparing the moisture so that when it reaches the lungs it is purified, warmed and moistened, so as not to disturb the equilibrium of the lung temperature. These blood vessels are very delicate and sensitive and one cannot be too careful against forcing fluids into the nose that may aggravate and disturb their action. Catarrh appears to the surface through the membranes inflaming the larynx, the windpipe and the bronchial tubes, and colds and coughs result. Catarrh is useless and harmful. The only way by which all the affected parts in a genuine case of catarrh may be reached is through the nostrils. The way the entire mucous lining is restored to a normal condition and the nervous blood and temperature serve to carry off the diseased mucus to the proper excretory organs. Since Glaxo's Catarrh Tablets came into use catarrh has been better understood by the masses and these tablets are now being used by thousands of people in any other way. A trial of these Glaxo's Catarrh Tablets will soon clear the head, throat and air passages, having a stimulating effect upon the bowels, bladder, stomach, and all the organs of the body. Always affected when the head is stuffed up. The tablets are always ready to be used. They are sold in bottles of 50 cents, by C. E. Glaxo, Marshall, Mich.
